

2009 Education and the Environment Initiative Curriculum Review Content Review Expert (CRE) Applicants - Cohort 2

Applicant Information

ID	Cohort	CRE/IMR	First Name	Last Name	Region	Employer	Potential Conflict of Interest
503	2	CRE	Kristine	Dennehy	South	California State University, Fullerton
Position						Additional Employers (If Applicable)
Associate Professor

Biography

- Academic: Ph.D. History (Fields: Modern/Early Modern Japanese History, Modern Korean History, Modern Japanese Literature), University of California, Los Angeles; M.A. Asian Studies-Department of Comparative Cultures, Sophia University, Tokyo; B.S. School of Languages and Linguistics-Certificate in Asian Studies, Georgetown University, Washington D.C.

- Areas of Expertise: Ph.D. in History with a focus on Asia; taught undergraduate surveys and graduate seminars in modern world history; research on the environmental effects of rapid industrialization and Japanese expansionism from the 19th century through 1945 and environmental issues associated with high-speed economic growth and the trends of globalization in the 20th and 21st century.

- Training/Experience: currently Associate Professor at California State University, Fullerton: developed teaching materials that address the problem of industrial pollution in post-World War II Asia including the effects of radiation from nuclear testing in the Pacific, safety issues related to local agriculture and nuclear energy, chemical poisoning, and the export of industrial pollution to other areas of Asia.

- Prior Standards/Curriculum Committee Service: Credential Advisor-Department of History; reviewed the Social Science Subject Matter Preparation Program changes; served on the Department of History's Curriculum Committee; reviews new course proposals and plans department-wide curricular improvements.